MARY KAY

NOTE: This is what one of our Consultants puts with her invitations. She enclosed it with her postcard in the envelope. You may want to write and include your personal reasons for starting Mary Kay with your invitations.

So everyone is asking me, why in the world are you a Mary Kay Independent Beauty Consultant? Well...to keep a long story short, I've been doing a lot of introspection, journaling and praying the past year and have realized that I want to go back to school and get a psychology degree and go into counseling. Although I like the type of work that I do, I feel that I am more passionate about helping others, especially on a personal basis. I have always been interested in teaching at the high school level in my future, but I feel that counseling is a better use of my spiritual gifts, personality and abilities.

My family, close friends and of course Ben is very supportive of the change. However Ben was eager to point out that I still have outstanding loans from getting my degree in mechanical engineering. So in an effort to continue having a steady income while going back to school I decided to join the Mary Kay team. So far things have been amazing! I'm really happy that I am making this change.

So I hope you can come out and support me during my Mary Kay Debut. It is pretty much the start of a whole new life for me!
